As a driver, I want to know the location of available parking lots around my current location, so that I can go to one that's closest to me.

As a driver, I want to know whether the parking lots near my location have available parking spaces, so that I can park my car in one of the empty lots.

As a traveler, I want to know the location of available parking lots near my desired destination, so that I can plan my trip accordingly.

As a shopper, I want to be able to save my favorite parking lots, so I can quickly find out whether there are available parking spaces at those spots.

As a student on a budget, I want to be able to see the prices of parking lots around my current location, so I can avoid the ones with high prices.

As a user, I want to be able to see the address of the parking lots that I'm interested in, so I can share my location with other people.

As a user, I want to be able to report the availability (empty, few spots available, full, etc.) of my current parking lot, so I can let other users know the availability of this parking lot.

As a user, I want to be able to report the price (per hour) of my current parking lot, so I can keep the most recent price updated.